Dear Parents/Carers,

I am pleased to be able to share with you our letter following our recent Section 8 Subject Inspection from Her Majesty's Chief Inspector of Education (Ofsted).

The letter outlines the main findings and evidence that she saw in her one-day visit with a specific focus on the subject of geography. There are plenty of things we do well and lots to be positive about and there are a few areas for us to focus on and improve.

Our (maths and English) results across the school in key year groups have been above the national average for the last few years and are set to be the case again this year – the children in our care make good progress and attain well in these areas. These results are not at the detriment of our foundation subjects however: we continue to offer a rich and varied curriculum to our children that spans the arts, sports, computing, humanities and languages as well as nurturing their own wellbeing and building their resilience. We believe every child has so much potential in areas outside of maths and English and it was encouraging that the Ofsted inspector recognised this also.

I am very proud of the children we teach and care for and of all the staff here at Lowdham CofE Primary School and am pleased we had this opportunity to showcase what we do.

If you have any questions or queries about this report, please do contact me.

Yours sincerely,
